Annandale

Marsha Blakeway currently works with the Conflict Resolution Education Group in Washington D.C. She teaches graduate level courses in conflict resolution and also has worked for the National Peace Foundation.

This two-part program will be dynamic and informative. Participants will gain new and fresh ideas for dealing with discipline issues and resolving conflicts in the family setting. It will include interactive sessions, questions and answers and discussion. You will gain practical solutions to commonly faced situations.

“Almost all of us learned our predominant conflict resolution strategies, good and bad, from home.”

--- Marsha Blakeway

This program is co-sponsored by Pinecrest School and the Montessori School of Northern Virginia (MSNV).
